WHAT THE CURRENT SOURCE SHOWS

Manual player details and 1-5 stars stay separate from historical 20-80 grades. Staff boards organize prospects by tier, with unrated players called out clearly.

Depth-chart and scholarship views support roster decisions. These images use synthetic records from the local review fixture; hosted behavior is not established by the screenshots.

TRACKMAN TRAJECTORY RECONSTRUCTION | FASTBALL-SLIDER PAIR

A selected Butler fastball-slider pair is shown at three points in one modeled flight. The 18.3-inch plate separation describes this pair; it does not establish hitter deception.

CommandIQ Motion Lab

ESTIMATED SINGLE-CAMERA MOTION | PAIRED TRACKMAN FLIGHT

Review one pitching session with source video, estimated pitcher motion, a reviewed TrackMan pairing and event markers on a shared timeline.

REPLAY WORKFLOW

1. Import a fixed-camera recording.
2. Review the pitch match and event candidates.
3. Compare estimated motion with measured flight.
4. Export a portable replay and coach report.

The screenshot shows the skeleton-only replay without player identity or source video. The 3D motion is a single-camera estimate, not validated motion capture or a medical measurement.

Replay frame · release event and playback controls

TrackMan contributes measured pitch facts only after a reviewed pairing. Camera depth and physical timing remain bounded by the available source evidence.

Ball Fox Report Workflow

BASE PLAYER DEVELOPMENT DASHBOARD: COLLEGE BASEBALL

Ball Fox turns TrackMan-exportable data into separate hitter and pitcher reports. The public edition describes the report structure without displaying player-level records.

Hitter review

A two-strike report connects spray, zone whiff rates, chase, contact, and a plain-language coaching question. The view keeps the sample size beside the rates.

Pitcher review

A pitcher summary brings pitch results, put-away performance, count usage, and command into one coach-readable view. Counts and pitch types remain visible so the reader can interpret each split.

Development use

Coaches can compare a specific goal with the relevant split, discuss what changed, and identify the next review question. Reports are decision support, not a substitute for video and coaching judgment.

Player names, individual performance data, and source reports are omitted from this public copy.
